

THE FRANKFORT ROUNDABOUT.

GEO. A. LEWIS, Publisher.

A WEEKLY PAPER—DEVOTED TO LOCAL AND SOCIETY NEWS.

TERMS: $1.00 In Advance

VOL. XXVIII.

FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY, SATURDAY, FEB. 4, 1905.

NO. 22

BROKE HIS ARM.

Hon. Jas. A. Violett was going home to his dinner, at 12 o'clock, m., on Monday, and when in front of the meat store of Mr. Nevill Collins, on Bridge street, he slipped and fell on the icy pavement and broke his right arm near the elbow.

Drs. Hume, Keller and Robinson were called and rendered surgical attention at once. It is a pretty bad injury.

BROUGHT BACK FOR BURIAL.

The body of Mr. F. H. Cunningham, who lived here some fifty years ago, was brought here on Wednesday and buried in our cemetery. He was a son-in-law of the late Dr. J. Russell Hawkins, of this county.

REVENUE COLLECTIONS FOR JANUARY.

The following was the internal revenue collected by Deputy Collector Grant L. Roberts, for the month of January: 2,888 barrels; 107,666 6-10 tax gallons; $118,493.26 amount of tax.

VALENTINE PARTY.

The Junior Auxiliary Society of Ascension Church will give their annual Valentine Party, in the Parish House, on Saturday, February 11, in place of St. Valentine's Day.

Everybody cordially invited to attend.

One Minute Cough Cure
For Coughs, Colds and Croup.

NARROW ESCAPE—BUGGY SMASHED.

On Sunday last, Mr. Stephen Black, the venerable deacon of Providence Baptist Church, and his wife went to the church to attend the Sunday-school and had just alighted from their buggy, and Mr. Black was about to place a blanket on the horse, when a cow ran around the corner of the Church and frightened the horse, so that it whirled around and upset the buggy and dashed toward the gate leading to the pike, smashing the buggy, disengaging itself from the harness and running down the pike.

Had it happened a moment sooner Mr. and Mrs. Black would have probably been badly hurt. As it was it was a narrow escape for these good people, who have a host of warm friends.

SOME MORE ACCIDENTS.

On Tuesday morning Mrs. Sarah Fellmer went out on the front porch of her residence, on Third street, where she slipped and fell on the icy floor, the back of her head striking the post, cutting a considerable gash, which required surgical attention.

While a lad by the name of George McEnnis was coasting, on Tuesday evening, on South Shelby street, he was run into by some companions and a gash cut in his thigh which required several stitches of a surgeon to close up.

A colored woman by the name of Brown, who cooks for Mr. Wm. Wilson, fell on the street, Tuesday night, and broke her arm at the wrist. Dr. Goodrich attended to the fracture.

CHANGES OF BASE.

Judge W. E. Settle has rented the residence of Misses Blakemore, on Second street, recently vacated by Mr. W. D. Roy, and has moved his family in.

Mr. W. D. Roy moved to Louisville the first of this week.

Mr. Sam. C. Bull, Sr., has rented the residence of Mrs. H. Howe Watson, on Wapping street, recently occupied by Judge W. E. Settle.

MEETING CLOSED.

The meeting at the Baptist Church, in Versailles, closed on Sunday last. Rev. M. B. Adams, of this city, preached twice a day for three weeks for the pastor, Rev. J. F. Williams, D. D. The church was very greatly revived and some twenty-one persons were added to the membership. Large crowds attended throughout.

The people of Versailles and the local papers speak in the highest terms of the ability and winning character of the sermons preached by Rev. Mr. Adams.

FIENDISH SUFFERING

Is often caused by sores, ulcers and cancers, that eat away your skin. Wm. Bedell, of Flat Rock, Mich., says: "I have used Bucklen's Arnica Salve for Ulcers, Sores and Cancers. It is the best healing dressing I ever found." Soothes and heals cuts, burns and scalds. 25c at all druggists. Guaranteed.

"UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES."

One of the Most Beautiful Plays on the American Stage to be Seen at Capital Theatre Monday Evening, February 6.

It has been said by those who have made a careful study of dramatic literature that no play can make a popular success that has not a good love story at its foundation. Dramatists have found this so true, that whatever themes may appeal to their artistic sense as novel or instructive material for the basis of a play, it is put aside as not likely to meet the taste of the majority of theatre-goers and some variation of the old, but never worn out theme of love, is again and again written for that public which is always demanding it. It is, no doubt, the strength and interest of the love story in "Under Southern Skies" that has given it its strong hold upon the public. "Under Southern Skies" is now in its fourth year of uninterrupted success, playing to crowded houses wherever it has appeared. The strong story showing the broken life and hearts of a man and a woman, and the almost wrecked happiness of a young girl has never failed to hold an audience fascinated and deeply interested from the opening of the play to the fall of the final curtain.

In bringing out this absorbing story, the author, Lottie Blair Parker, who also wrote "Way Down East," has followed the same method of work which made "Way Down East" so delightful. She has made each one of the twenty-seven characters in "Under Southern Skies" a distinct type of individual life as found in the South. The impulsive "colonel" of flowery speech; the cool, impressive "colonel," who is "quick on the trigger," notwithstanding his calm demeanor; the courtly "major," who covers a sad heart with smiles of cordial hospitality; the young hot-headed suitors for the love of the heroine—these are all the men of the south in the years following closely upon the great rebellion. The women too, dainty, airy, full of light-hearted gaiety, are the women of the south, not yet ingrained with the stern lesson of work and necessity which is the very birthright of the New England woman. These characters, set against a background of beautiful scenery and stately old southern homes, move lightly and gaily through the succeeding scenes of the play, the thread of the story, the tragedy underlying it all growing stronger and stronger until the climax of the third act finds the audience tense and breathless. Curtain call after curtain call follows this act, ten and twelve calls sometimes being taken.

A novel scene introduced in the play is a Halloween celebration, the like of which has never before been done upon the stage—Halloween tricks are performed and a pumpkin dance follows. The diversion is so natural and is entered into with so much spirit that it rouses the audience to the highest pitch of laughter and enjoyment. Taken in its entirety "Under Southern Skies" has truthfully been said to be the most original, diverting and unhackneyed play of Southern life ever written. Our theatre patrons are to be congratulated upon the fact that they will have an opportunity of seeing this highly successful play. "Under Southern Skies" is to appear at Capital Theatre Monday evening, February 6.

Sets now on sale at Barret's. Prices 25 cents to $1.

Only one remedy in the world that will at once stop itching of the skin in any part of the body: Doan's Ointment. At any drug store, 50 cents.

BROKE HIS ARM.

Mr. George Gordon, pressman at the Roundabout office, had the misfortune to slip and fall on the icy pavement, on Monday night, as he was on his way home, at almost the same place that Hon. J. A. Violett fell, the same day (in front of Collins' Meat Store, on Bridge street), and to break his left arm.

Dr. O. B. Demaree was summoned and rendered surgical attention, reducing the fracture.

Is it a burn? Use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. A cut? Use Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. At your druggists.

DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY.

Joseph H. Lewis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will meet this (Saturday) afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. E. L. Samuel, on St. Clair street.

MRS. SAM'L LEAVY,
President.

CHANGED BASE.

Mrs. Alma Barrett and Mrs. C. H. Mandeville have formed a partnership in the notion and millinery business, and have leased the storeroom formerly used as the Elk's Cafe, and moved in.

BUELL TAYLOR HEARD FROM.

A pleasant surprise came to Mrs. R. B. Taylor, on Saturday, in the shape of a letter from her son, Mr. Buell Taylor, notifying her that he had been discharged from the regular army, on January 20, at Angel Island, Cal., and would start for home in a few days. He had just returned from the Philippines. It will be remembered that quite a sensation was created about a month ago, by a statement from Belleville, Ill., that the body of a man had been found there, and that it had been identified as young Taylor. Mr. Ed. M. Grant and Mr. George Conway went to ascertain the facts and found that it was not Mr. Taylor's body.

PECULIAR DISAPPEARANCE.

J. D. Runyan, of Butlerville, O., laid the peculiar disappearance of his painful symptoms, of indigestion and biliousness, to Dr. King's New Life Pills. He says: "They are a perfect remedy, for dizziness, sour stomach, headache, constipation, etc." Guaranteed at all druggists. Price 25c.

COL. HOGELAND.

Col. A. Hogeland, the author of the Curfew Law, made several addresses to our citizens on Sunday, and visited the City School on Monday, and addressed the scholars.

He complimented our schools very highly, but insisted that the Curfew Law should be enforced anew.

MARRIED.. DEATHS..

BROWN-THOMSON—At the residence of the officiating minister, in Louisville, on Wednesday, Mr. Scott Brown and Miss Lillian Thomson were married by Rev. J. R. Sampey, D. D.

Mr. Brown is a fine looking and energetic young farmer and stock trader of this county, and one of the tallest men in Kentucky. He is very popular with all who know him. He is the second son of the late Judge Reuben Brown.

His bride is one of Frankfort's prettiest, sweetest and most attractive girls. She is the oldest daughter of the late Mr. Thos. Thomson, of this county. She is a graduate of the City High School, and is highly accomplished.

For several years she has been a teacher at the Institute for Feeble-Minded Children.

After the marriage the happy couple left for a trip through the South.

We tender our sincerest congratulations.

CRUTCHER-COTTON—A nouncement is made of the approaching marriage of Mr. Robert Redd Crutcher and Miss Emma Logan Cotton, both of whom will occur on Wednesday, February 3, at the Christian Church in Versailles.

Mr. Crutcher is an industrious and wide-awake farmer, and is brother of Messrs. Otis and Jas. W. Crutcher, former residents of this city, and is a fine young man.

His bride-to-be is one of the sweetest and handsomest of Woodford county's girls. She is a splendid match for Mr. Crutcher. We have known her for long years and know that she will be a wife of whom any man might be proud. She is a daughter of Mr. Geo. T. Cotton and wife, of Versailles.

We tender our congratulations in advance.

HARRIS-RUNYAN—In St. Louis, Mo., on February 16, Mr. Lucien M. Harris, former correspondent of the Louisville Herald, and Miss Elsie Morrison Runyan, will be married.

Mr. Harris is a cousin of Mrs. M. L. Campbell, Mr. N. J. Sawyer and Mr. R. W. McRery.

RESTRAINED.

The Court of Appeals has issued an order restraining Judge Parker from proceeding in the Hargis-Callahon-French cases until February 10, at which time the case will be argued before the full bench of the higher court.

AYRES—At his home, in Louisville, on Tuesday, Mr. Hugh R. Ayres, aged about 45 years, from pulmonary trouble.

Mr. Ayres was born and raised in this city. He prepared himself for the profession of a civil engineer, and was in the employ of the L. & N. Railroad for many years, and was so employed when he passed away. He was the son of the late Mr. Edward and Mrs. Margaret Ayres, and was a cousin of Mrs. Duane Brown, of this city.

He was a quiet, unassuming and modest gentleman, of sterling integrity and ability.

He leaves a wife and one son, Edward, besides a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his untimely death.

The funeral services were conducted from the chapel in our cemetery on Thursday morning, at 9:30 o'clock, by Rev. M. B. Adams, of the First Baptist Church, after which the remains were laid away in the family lot.

O'DONNELL—In this city, on Tuesday last, at his residence on the South Side, Mr. Harry B. O'Donnell, aged 40 years.

Mr. O'Donnell was born in Lexington, but came to this city when but a little lad. He was an industrious and energetic man, and a number of years ago he and Mr. Chas. L. Weitzel entered into a partnership in the dry goods business, on St. Clair street, afterwards removing to the store-room next door to the corner of St. Clair and Main streets.

By energy and close attention they succeeded in building up a large and profitable business, the partnership in which was only dissolved some three weeks since, by the retirement of Mr. O'Donnell.

Some four years ago Mr. O'Donnell was attacked with a nervous trouble, which culminated in locomotor ataxia, and, after long months of suffering, carried him away.

Some ten years ago, Mr. O'Donnell was married to Miss Hannah Haly, daughter of Mr. D. L. Haly, and they were blessed with three children, one son and two daughters, who, together with his wife, two brothers (Messrs. James and Will O'Donnell, of this city), and two sisters (Mrs. D. J. McCarty and Mrs. Wm. Cady, of Washington City), are left to mourn his untimely death.

He was a clever gentleman and a devout member of the Catholic Church.

The funeral services were conducted from the Church of the Good Shepherd, on Thursday morning last, at 9:30 o'clock, by Rev. Father Thos. S. Major, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Catholic Cemetery.

KALTENBRUN—At the residence of her son, Dr. V. A. Kaltenbrun, on Monday night, Mrs. Friedricka Kaltenbrun, aged 76 years, of the infirmities of age.

Mrs. Kaltenbrun had been a resident of this city for over half a century, she and her husband coming here from Germany when they were both young people. She had lived a long and upright life, respected by all who knew her.

She was a devout member of the Episcopal Church.

The tender love and affection subsisting between her and her husband, drawing them closer together as the years went by, was noted by every one who was acquainted with them. When her life partner was called hence, something over a year ago, she seemed to lose interest in the affairs of life, and to long to follow him.

By frugality and industry this good couple had acquired a handsome competence, which was invested in the city of their choice, and whose prosperity was dear to both.

Mrs. Kaltenbrun leaves two children (Mrs. Freddie Weisenburg and Dr. V. A. Kaltenbrun, both of this city), and a large number of grandchildren and friends to mourn her death.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. B. Chinn, on Wednesday, at 10:30 o'clock, and the remains were laid by the side of her husband in our cemetery.

MINOR—At his home in this county, on yesterday, Mr. Jeff Minor, aged 76 years.

Fuller notice next week.

NINETY YEARS OLD.

Mrs. Elizabeth Vallandigham celebrated her 90th birthday on Tuesday, and was remembered by her numerous friends with presents of flowers. She received six dozen carnations, besides quite a number of roses and other winter blossoms. The old lady is quite active for her years—gets up and makes her own fire each morning and takes care of her room, her eyesight allowing her to read to some extent. May she still be able to bless her friends with her gentle presence when the century mark is passed.

TO OUR PATRONS.

We will, in a few days, send out bills to our patrons for their subscriptions to the Roundabout. The amounts due from each individual subscriber are small, but, in the aggregate they amount to a very considerable sum, and will help very materially to make the "wheels go round."

We trust the response will be prompt and assuring, for which we shall be duly grateful. tf.

DANGEROUS WALKS.

It has been demonstrated, during the snow and slippery weather of the last few months, that many of our granitoid and other sidewalkers are veritable death traps, from the fact that they are so steeply inclined that it is almost impossible for pedestrians to pass along them.

It has been held by the courts that an incline of three inches in ten is negligent construction, for which the city can be held in damages.

We are also informed by a competent attorney that the failure upon the part of the city to either require the property holders to remove all ice, sleet and snow as soon as possible after the fall thereof ceases, or else have it done by city labor, is a subject for assessment of damages in favor of anyone injured by reason of said failure.

It behooves the city authorities to look after this matter in every instance promptly, and thus avoid suits for damages against the city, such as have been brought by parties recently injured by their neglect.

For Thin Babies

Fat is of great account to a baby; that is why babies are fat. If your baby is scrawny, Scott's Emulsion is what he wants. The healthy baby stores as fat what it does not need immediately for bone and muscle. Fat babies are happy; they do not cry; they are rich; their fat is laid up for time of need. They are happy because they are comfortable. The fat surrounds their little nerves and cushions them. When they are scrawny those nerves are hurt at every ungentle touch. They delight in Scott's Emulsion. It is as sweet as wholesome to them.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me.

When the nervous system has been shattered by the use of deadly drugs there is nothing to equal Dr. Miles' Nervine in restoring it to health and normal activity.

"I feel so grateful for what Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has done for me that I must tell it for that part of humanity that suffers as I have. During the three years I suffered from nervous prostration I found no relief except when doctors gave morphine. To get rid of suffering I took morphine myself as it was the only thing that would give ease, and now you, who point with scorn at morphine using, how could you, when in such agony, knowing it about the only thing that would give relief, resist it? I knew it was a terrible habit and I knew of its deadly grasp, but I never fully realized its significance until I had used it a number of months. Oh, the misery of being addicted to such a habit. I resolved then and there to quit it and resolved I would never be a slave to any such agency. At this time I happened to notice Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine advertised and ordered a bottle. After using five bottles I can truly say I am cured of using morphine. Now, however much persons may doubt it, God is my witness I am cured. This testimonial is unsolicited but I feel it my duty to give it for the benefit of the suffering."—MARTIE PHILLIPS, Prescott, Ark.

AFTER LONG YEARS.

His Story.

"After long years, to-night we meet.
I gaze through tears upon your lovely face;
Your eyes of blue, your tender, winning grace,
And I would give my life to clasp your hand.
To hear your dear voice give me one command
That I might kneel repentant at your feet."

"After long years, you pass still free,
Unconscious in your perfect womanhood;
My earnest wish may not be understood.
For though you loved me once the dream has passed,
And I have learned to worship you—alas!"

O, God! in tender mercy, pity me!
"After long years once more we meet.
To walk our different ways no more to meet;
My path of thorns and yours with roses sweet,
I'm suffering anguish you drank years ago
My cup is full—the hour has come
For life-long sorrow and a broken heart."

HER ANSWER.

"I saw thee though my eyes were turned away.
I wondered if the years had changed
Me, too, as thou wert changed?
I wondered if you knew,
That I could quite forget those bitter tears,
Forget my anger and those cruel years
And lead you once again as on that day?"

"But I was not remembered.
You passed by without a sign or token.
Then I knew that different ways were ordered for us two
And so I laughed, and suffered on again
As I shall suffer always—till the Shall leave me at the last
In peace to die!"

"DAVID HARUM."

The Play You Can Not Afford to Miss at Capital Theatre This Evening.

Mr. Julius Cahn will present the dramatization of Westcott's widely read book, "David Harum," at the Capital Theatre this evening. The play is now nearly three years old, and since its production it has had a phenomenal measure of success. For sixteen weeks it ran in New York, for six weeks in Chicago, for two months in Boston, where it proved to be a record breaker in point of attendance, and for six weeks in Philadelphia. In transplanting the story from the book to the stage the dramatizers were careful to take full liberties with Westcott's work. Into three acts the play is divided, and all of the scenes are laid in Homeville, New York. In the first act the audience sees David's bank on one side and Aunt Polly's house across the road, and in the background the big barn wherein David kept his horses. All of the familiar characters are quickly introduced. There is David's factotum, Dick Larribee, and Dug Robinson, who drives the stage from the depot. Then comes the old skin-flint, Zeke Swinney, and shortly after the little Widow Cullom, the relic of Billy P. Mary Blake then puts in an appearance, and herein is where the only liberty that is taken with the story is introduced. She comes into Homeville to get a position in the public school, she having learned that for years she was dependent on General Wolsey. Her independence asserted itself, and she determined to earn her own living. She went to Homeville because her mother was buried there, and—well, because she knew that after the death of his father—John Lenox went to work in David Harum's bank. John Lenox comes into view and so does part little Cot Timson. There is dear old Aunt Polly and sloping along comes the village tough, Bill Montague. Brown makes his first appearance as Harum behind that pesky critter, the bay boss, which has been given him a "dumb tough time of it" on the River Road. The story is quickly developed. Deacon Perkins comes to look the bay "boss" over and the animal is brought out of the barn and down to the trough. David then effects the sale of the animal which will "stand without hitchin'."

The second act is laid in the office of the counting room of the bank. It is essentially the office of a man who loves horses. In this act there is the incident of the counterfeit bills, the tussle with Bill Montague, the resignation of Chet Timson and the securing of the mortgages on the Widow Cullom's houses.

In the third act, another phase of David Harum's character is shown in his home life. The scene is laid in Aunt Polly's sitting room and the time is Christmas morning. It is snowing hard outside. Aunt Polly is having John Lenox's things surreptitiously removed from the Eagle Tavern to her spare room. The Widow Cullom comes in answer to David's summons expecting to be bereft of her home. There is the story of David's visit to the circus, the giving to the widow of her home, the engagement of John Lenox and Mary Blake and the curtain falls on the Christmas dinner with David's opening that famous bottle of champagne.

Mr. Cahn's company is an exceptionally strong one and Harry Brown, who plays the part of Harum, is one of the best character actors on the stage.

Seats are on sale at Barrett's Book Store, Main Street. Prices 25 cents to $1.

POSITIVE PROOF Should Convince the Greatest Skeptic in Frankfort.

Because it's the evidence of a Frankfort citizen. Testimony easily investigated. The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best of proof. Read it: W. H. Roberts, grocer, of 390 Todd St., says: "Being in the drug business a good many years and a graduate pharmacist, my knowledge of medicine was sufficient to prove that my kidneys were not performing the work which nature intended they should, for I suffered a great deal from a persistent aching pain across the small of my back, and the secretions from the kidneys were highly colored, and so irregular, especially at night, that my rest was greatly disturbed. It was not until some two or three years ago that I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I sent to a large neighboring city and got a box. I gained so much from the use of these Pills that I pronounced them a kidney remedy of unequalled merit. My last supply was procured at J. W. Gayle's drug store and I take a dose of them once in a while as a tonic for the kidney. A number of friends of mine to whom I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills have used them with great benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

PUBLIC IS AROUSED.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 546 St. Clair Ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed by all druggists. Price 50c.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The game of cross-purposes and politics goes merrily on, at an expense of $1,500 to $2,000 per day to the taxpayers.

The House passed a bill locating the Capitol on the Hunt site and appropriating $40,000 for the purchase of the necessary grounds (by a vote of 52 to 23), and sent it to the Senate.

The Senate, not to be outdone (after having voted in favor of the site known as the "Institute for Feeble-Minded Children," by a vote of 18 to 15), then turned around and adopted a substitute for the House bill by a vote of 25 to 4, appropriating $60,000, requiring additional grounds to be purchased and located on the Hunt site also.

Many people thought the matter was as good as settled, but they did not know the ways of "ye politician," by a long sight.

When the Senate's substitute was reported back to the House, the gentlemen who had been declaiming so loudly for a prompt settlement of the matter, and for the Hunt site, had a revelation. There was a "mouse in the meat tub," and that august body at once raised its hands in holy horror at the extravagance of the upper house, and swore "by the great horn spoon," that they would never sanction such awful extravagance, forgetting, at the same time, that, by refusing to concur with the Senate, they were, in all probability, following a course that would cost the State about as much as the extra amount called for in the Senate bill, by prolonging the session and yet leaving the matter unsettled. It is strenuously suspected that the Senatorial solons, had loaded their substitute with the extra amount, just in order to draw the House out to defeat the bill and thus produce "confusion worse confounded."

The play for political control still goes on apace.

Any way the situation is just simply where it began nearly thirty days ago.

STAMPING GROUND.

Owing to the marriage of Mrs. Perry Mothershead, a vacancy was created in the position of assistant postmaster, and Miss Hallie Oldham has been appointed to that place.

Mr. B. G. Robinson, Sr., and Mr. J. A. Robinson have purchased a lot from "Squire J. S. Lindsay, on Main street, running back to the F. & C. Railroad, where they expect to build a livery and sale stable. The price paid was $250 cash.

The Colored Baptist Church, for the third time, was destroyed by fire, on Sunday night, about 11 o'clock. It is supposed that a defective flue caused the fire. The loss will amount to $1,000, with no insurance.

Sunday was about the worst day of the winter. It snowed all day, a fine, powdery snow. The mercury Monday morning had fallen to 2 degrees above zero.

THE KENTUCKY PURCHASE.

Several inquiries have come of late concerning the "Kentucky Purchase," and as the printed stories make only the barest mention of an event that was of the highest importance to the young nation and this section in particular, an effort has been made to get information from private parties. Through the kindness of Col. H. M. Doack the following letter from R. T. Durrett, of Louisville, Ky., has been obtained, and is printed with Durrett's permission:

"When Kentucky was first settled by the whites, and when she became a State, and for years afterwards, the Chickasaw Indians held the southwestern part of the State. When in 1780 a fort was built on the Mississippi river by the United States, the consent of these Indians was not obtained and they resented the intrusion as a seizure of a part of their land. They attacked the fort, known as Fort Jefferson, and came very near starving out the garrison occupying it. At the critical moment, however, an officer of the fort loaded a swivel with musket balls and fired it into the ranks of the Indians, who were close to the fort, and made such destruction among them that they were discouraged and abandoned the siege. It required a good deal of care, however, to manage these Indians afterward and keep them at peace. Peace was preserved, however, until the final purchase of these lands from the Indians in the year 1818.

"A treaty meeting was held in Old Town and Gen. Jackson and Gov. Shelby acted as commissioners for the United States and the chiefs and principal men of the Chickasaw Nation represented the Indians. The meeting lasted for several days and finally closed on the 10th day of October, 1818.

The treaty was signed by Isaac Shelby and Andrew Jackson as commissioners on the part of the United States and by Levi Colbert and twenty others as representatives of the Indians. By this treaty the United States purchased all the lands in southwestern Kentucky between the Mississippi river on the west and the Tennessee on the east, and Kentucky on the south. This territory has since been divided up into eight counties—Ballard, McCracken, Marshall, Calloway, Graves, Carlisle, Hickman and Fulton.

"For this large body of land the United States agreed to pay twenty thousand dollars per year for fifteen years, and in addition thereto a number of individual payments to the Indians and the allowance of the use of certain districts of the land. Since this purchase the transaction has been known more generally as the Jackson than as the Jackson and Shelby Purchase. It has, however, in recent years assumed the name of 'The Purchase,' and is so known wherever it is known at all to-day."

Mr. Durrett may be in error as to the recentness of the use of the term "The Purchase," for Col. Doack says that he remembers when a boy hearing immigrants from North Carolina, who were passing in their "prairie schooners," say they were "a-gwine" to the "Purchase."

PASSING AWAY.

Death is fast thinning the ranks of the famous society of Shakers at Pleasant Hill, Mercer county. The last one to answer the final call was Sister Elizabeth Spalding, whose death occurred a few days ago. She was reported to be over eighty-five years of age. The members of this once thriving little village are rapidly passing away, and in a few more years the society will be extinct. Pleasant Hill is even yet one of the interesting points in the State, even though a decided change has taken place in the last several years. In times gone by many wealthy people from all parts of the country would visit this place, and would spend the summer. The village was founded in 1810 by the society, and for years was one of the most prosperous in the country. At one time about seven thousand acres of the finest bluegrass land was owned by the society.

"EVERYMAN" COMING.

The Great Morality Play at Capital Theatre One Night Only, February 8.

It is not very flattering to modern dramatists, that no dramatic work of recent years has created one-fourth the interest among educated people as the old morality play "Everyman," written and first produced nearly five hundred years ago. Nevertheless it is a fact, that the revival of this remarkable play of the middle ages, is the most notable dramatic event of recent years. It has been presented in New York, Boston, Chicago and other large cities during the past season to very large audiences, and has everywhere made a profound impression and revived the interest in English literature of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

The first production of "Everyman" in this city at the Capital Theatre on next Wednesday, February 8, by Rudolph E. Magnus and his excellent company is an event worthy of more than passing notice, in fact one deserving the special attention of all educated people, whether regular theatre-goers or not. "Everyman" is more than a play; nothing like it has ever been seen in this city. It stands in a distinct class by itself, and to miss the opportunity of witnessing this strange play ought to be a matter of sincere regret.

Mr. Magnus' portrayal of the exacting title role, is spoken of as an exceptionally scholarly and intelligent performance, and one that makes an impression upon his auditors not easily forgotten. The supporting company has also found favor with the critics and a performance of a high degree of excellence can be anticipated.

From a scenic standpoint the production will be complete. Mr. Magnus brings with him all the special scenery used by him recently in Chicago.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH A REST.

Your food must be properly digested and assimilated to be of any value to you. If your stomach is weak or diseased take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat and gives the stomach a rest, enabling it to recuperate, take on new life and grow strong again. Kodol cures sour stomach, gas, bloating, heart palpitation and all digestive disorders. L. A. Soper, of Little Rock, Ky., writes us: "We feel that Kodol Dyspepsia Cure deserves all the commendation that can be given it, as it saved the life of our little girl when she was three years old. She is now six and we have kept it for her constantly, but of course she only takes it now when anything disagrees with her." Sold by J. W. Gayle.

"DO IT TO-DAY."

The time-worn injunction, "Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day," is now generally presented in this form: "Do it to-day!" That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it to-day—and let that remedy be Dr. Beecher's Eucalypti Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. lyrr.

MINUTE ADOPTED BY THE SESSION OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH ON THE DEATH OF MR. S. C. BULL

Whereas, God in His providence has removed by death from our midst Mr. S. C. Bull, our official brother and fellow laborer in His cause, Session puts on record this expression of our appreciation of his character as a man, a Christian, and an officer of this church;

Mr. Bull was born in the neighboring county of Shelby on September 5, 1831, hence had passed his 70th birthday before taken with his last illness. When about fifteen years of age, he came to Frankfort and secured a position in the store of Mr. W. M. Todd, at that time and for many years a ruling elder in this church and Superintendent of the Sabbath School. Mr. Todd took the young stranger to his own home and looked after his moral and spiritual welfare as he did for his own family. This period of residence under the supervision of such a man as Mr. Todd left its indelible impression on the character of Mr. Bull, to which in after life he often gratefully referred.

In 1857 Mr. Bull united by profession with this church. In 1860 he was elected a member of the board of deacons, which office he filled for three years, when he was elected and installed a ruling elder, and in 1867 he was also elected Superintendent of the Sunday-school, the latter two offices he filled most efficiently till the time of his death, having filled each of these offices longer than any other one in any office in the history of this church.

As the leader of the music of the church, in the choir at the mid-week services, and in the Sunday-school, Mr. Bull had left behind him a record equalled probably by no man that has ever lived in this community, and perhaps by few in any community anywhere. God blessed him with a voice of rare quality, which was constantly called into requisition upon all occasions when vocal music was desired, at concerts, at religious conventions, in church services, at funerals, and at the bedside of the sick and dying, and he never failed to respond and was always listened to with pleasure, comfort and edification.

It is with unanimous and heartiest satisfaction that we as a Session testify to the uniform fidelity with which Mr. Bull filled every position he was called on to occupy. His devotion to the service of his Lord and the church with which he was connected was such that no personal inconvenience, length of way, want of body, state of weather, or business perplexities were ever allowed to interfere with his presence at public worship or official meetings. The influence that has gone out through his long life of faithful and multiplied services, and which has been wrought into this church is beyond the power of finite mind to estimate.

In this respect, "he being dead yet speaketh." His place will be hard to fill.

In all the bereavements and trials of life that Mr. Bull was called on to pass through, he bore himself with a humble resignation to the Divine will that betokened the presence and power of a faith which spoke to his soul—"It is the Lord, let Him do what seemeth Him good and blessed be the name of the Lord." When stricken with disease he bore his long illness with a cheerfulness that banished gloom from his sick chamber, and was a perpetual benediction to his family.

We record our profound sense of the great loss as a church we have sustained in the death of S. C. Bull, and tender to the sorrowing family our deepest sympathies in their hour of bereavement.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, HISTORY, LITERATURE.

A Sketch—Thomas Carlyle.

Born December 4, 1795, in the village of Ecclefechan, parish of Hoddam, Dumfriesshire, Scotland. Died at Chelsea, February 5, 1881.

Peculiar views prevented him from becoming a minister. He began the study of law, which he dropped for a period of work as private tutor to the brilliant G. O. Butler, and then embraced literature as a profession.

From 1823 to 1826 he published many translations, among them "Goethe's Wilhelm Meister," and the life of Schiller, both severely criticized, and yet highly praised—indications of Carlyle's genius clearly shown in the peculiar style and polished methods of delineation.

He married Jane Welsh (a lineal descendant of John Knox) in 1820, and wrote his specimens of German Romance (4 vols.) in the same eventful, wonderful year.

After he retired to Craigenputtock, a small property in Dumfriesshire, belonging to his wife, the loneliest nook in Britain, as he himself expresses it, he earnestly dedicated his whole life to the great questions in philosophy, literature, social ethics, and politics. When he departed this life he was regarded as one of the greatest of modern literary men. He was better fitted to great thought, to stimulate and awaken nature than to guide.

Intolerant, strong in his prejudices, his judgment seems often perverse, and his political maxims may be disputed with impunity, but no one could have the temerity to deny his genius, or fail to see in his writings the fervent earnestness and prophetic fire which made him one of the great moral forces of the 19th Century. His style was not less remarkable for its power and graphic effect, than for its abruptness, ruggedness, and eccentricity. I deem him as a towering oak in the forest of writers, set apart, as it were, for some specific purpose in the annals of literature, and from whom one can draw inspiration as fresh and as pure as the water from a mountain.

E. C. Moore, said:

"The genuinely educated man is not one who has merely passed through a great many different experiences and who has made the acquaintance of a wide range of men and things, but rather one who has formed the habit of consciously using the experiences he has already had, be they few or many, in testing the new experiences which may come to him."

So Carlyle in imbibing the silent, powerful forces which underlie the strata of natural phenomena, gave off in erratic pessimistic querulousness those questionable ideas inculcated in a misanthrope. "A man can not aspire if he looks down, for God has not created us with aspirations and longings for heights to which we can not climb." And to the unsatisfied soul of the great individual, even hope is but a promise of the possibility of it as own fulfillment. Had Carlyle ever loved poor, dependent, unselfish Jane Welsh as she merited and deserved, he could have arisen out of the unhealthy atmosphere of disappointed yearnings that were never realized.

She—quiet brown mouse of the lonely farm house, paid him the highest compliment a woman can pay to a man (and that man her husband). She idealized his attributes, she idolized his attainments, she loved him with all her soul, laughing aloud when the impossibility of a return of her affection (and it was ever a mooted question), was spoken of, realizing with the perfection of a thorough artistic discernment, that she must keep up the renewed fight—loving the man she had married as she had loved him from the beginning, as she would love him to the end!

And so I have learned to think of these two persons living apart in the stern reality of every day existence, fuller of duties than the sky of stars, as I do other lives as sad, as those forgotten graves upon the bleak and lonely hillsides, and to their revered memories I would plant two rose trees hardly enough to withstand the criticisms of the passersby.

One should be white, delicate and fragrant as was the sweet spirit of the woman "buried alive" in Craigenputtock, the other should be red and full of rare perfume, the two commingling beauty and strength—rare virtues in the abstract—and upon the arch over which the branches hung I would write these lines, dedicating them with tears.

Two clouds of lovely azure blue, Floated one day across the sky; Agreeing gave as each passed by, As human hearts may do, Then as they floated out of sight, Lo, all the day had changed to night!

Far lonelier than on yesterday, The same blue clouds have met again, As is the sunshine after rain So bleak December passed to May, And now before the blaze of sun These clouds have melted into one.

IMMIGRATION TO THE SOUTH.

We commented, some days ago, on the movement to turn the tide of European immigration from the overcrowded cities of the North to the undeveloped fields and industries of the South. This would be to the advantage of all interested. It would benefit the North which is suffering from the congestion of a large immigrant population in its great cities; to the South by furnishing it with more labor to develop its resources. It would be equally advantageous to the American laborer by protecting him from the competition with an excess of cheap and unskilled labor, which has a tendency to depress wages; while the immigrant who is looking for work and frequently can not find it in the North, and in despair returns home, would find plenty to do on the Southern farms and plantations.

But while the project is so generally advantageous to all, we scarcely expected to see it received with such unanimous favor. The United States Bureau of Immigration is prepared to give its ardent support, and will do all it can legally do to turn the newly arrived immigrants towards the South. Commissioner-General of Immigration Sargent would, indeed, go much further if the law allowed it. In discussing the matter with the representatives of the Southern railroads who went before him, he expressed regret that the Federal government had not provided by law for the better distribution of aliens in this country, as its failure had resulted in the building up and maintenance of foreign colonies in the United States, which ought to be broken up.

It was only by proper distribution that the evil could be corrected. He added that the practical question was, what shall be done with the hundreds of thousands of immigrants to avoid dangers that now threaten us? He called attention to the congestion of population in New York, Chicago and other cities; the enormous expenditure for the support of indigent aliens; the records of the lesser criminal and police courts; the alien inmates of hospitals, jails and reformatory institutions; the crowded habitations of foreigners in the cities; the struggle for bare existence by which the "sweatshop" system has passed from one alien race to another; the introduction into this country of the Mafia, the vendetta, the "Black Hand" and anarchist societies, and, on the other hand, the millions of untitled acres and the unsatisfied demand for agricultural and other manual labor. All these evils, he thought, could be cured by the diversion of a part of this foreign immigration into the agricultural sections of the South.

The Southern press, officials and people generally have expressed themselves friendly to the movement, and as anxious to welcome the newcomer—this showing a marked change of sentiment from the old belief that the settlement of European immigrants in this section would do great harm by disorganizing the negro labor-

Even more pronounced is the press of the North, which is giving the project a send-off that can not fail to help it. These papers declare that the tide of foreign population to the South, by bringing about the development of this section, will benefit the country as a whole, while it will hasten a satisfactory settlement of the race question.

The Chicago Post (Rep.) thinks the movement destined to be a success because it is in the hands of such eminently practical men. "Of two-fold importance," says the Post, "is the movement launched in Washington for the purpose of diverting to Southern agricultural and industrial communities the stream of immigration that now is directed to the larger centers of population in the North. Besides serving in a measure to solve the serious problem of foreign colonization in cities, it should give to the South's industrial revival an added impetus sufficient to overcome any retardant influences that may develop. The proposition differs from most social and economic schemes, in the fact that its consummation is in the hands of practical railroad business men instead of dreamers and visionaries. The benefit of such an arrangement to the immigrants would be incalculable. Many of them would find in the South climate and soil conditions not widely different from those of their native counties. They also would feel an independence and encouragement toward useful citizenship that in the very nature of things can not be given them in the great cities. The proposition is one that merits the fullest encouragement."

The Philadelphia Ledger is equally emphatic in its views, and announces that it will support any legislation necessary to bring before the newly arrived immigrants the advantages of the South for their settlement. The Ledger says: "The Department of Commerce and Labor at Washington has undertaken a work, under the direction of Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner of Labor, for the distribution of immigrants through the South, which promises the most beneficial results to the immigrants and the whole country. Commissioner Sargent, at the meeting held the other day to discuss the project with the passenger agents of the various Southern railroads, outlined a plan which requires an enactment by Congress creating an information bureau at the chief port of entry, or several bureaus at the important ports. The officials of these bureaus are to collect all possible information about the various sections of the South which offer opportunities in agriculture and other industries for enterprising workers. These bureaus, working in co-operation with the railroads, with the employers of labor and with boards of trade and State immigration societies, are to attempt by moral suasion to distribute worthy immigrants in the parts of the country where their labor is needed, and thus prevent them from remaining in the great cities, where they gravitate into the slums and haunts of crime, or at least overburden the labor market."

The movement, the Ledger declares, is not only an industrial undertaking, but probably the most valuable of all charity endeavors of recent years, for it promises to correct the present evil conditions in city life, due to the congestion of population in the slums. The Providence Journal, speaking for New England, promises equal support to any legislation that may be necessary to carry this project into effect. "There is a real scarcity of labor in the South," says the Journal, "not only on the plantations but in the manufacturing towns, and it is a scarcity that can never be fully and satisfactorily supplied by the negroes. If the thousands of aliens who now huddle in poverty in the cities of the North and East can be diverted thither very desirable economic results can be attained. Experiments on a small scale have already shown that Italian farmers, for example, are exceedingly well adapted for work in the cotton fields; other aliens could doubtless be employed with equal success in other Southern industries, to their own advantage, to the better development of Southern resources and to the ultimate increase of the national wealth."

It may be reasonably expected, therefore, that a considerable proportion of the foreign immigrants landing upon our shores will in future be turned towards the South, assuring a better supply of labor and leaving us no longer so largely dependent on unreliable negro labor. It is probable that the South and Southwest will receive the full quantum of white immigration promised by the railroads last year, but which did not wholly materialize.

At the same time, however, that we are bidding for this white immigration from Europe, let us not lose sight of similar immigration from the North and West. There could be no more valuable addition to our population than the thousands of Northern and Western farmers who would like to move South because of its climate and the cheaper lands this section offers them. —Times-Democrat Editorial, December 22, 1904.
